Your Personal Data & Being an EU Business Opinion 04/01/2019 The EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) will come into force on 25th May 2018. In compliance with this, PHPA is undertaking a major project to ensure we are fully compliant and fully understand the GDPR regulations. In this article, we examine the GDPR and how it may affect you as a business, and how the organisation you work for is affected, too. The origins of the GDPR lie in existing legislation. The Right to be Forgotten (RTBF), introduced in the Data Protection Directive of 1998, requires controllers (or those who process personal data on behalf of controllers) to be transparent about how they process personal data. They must also be able to substantiate the way that personal data is processed. This ensures that the controller of personal data is directly responsible for processing the personal data, and not a processor who is merely working on behalf of the controller. The RTBF came into effect in May 2003. Since then, many amendments to the Data Protection Directive
